

To the members of the FCC. I have only been a subscriber to XM Radio for about two months and it has become a valuable tool in my home since. When I need to know what the weather is going to be like before I leave the house and I don't want to have to wait for a stream of radio commercials and music, I just flip to the local weather weather station on my XM and I have all the information I need. I feel that this is a great convenience and rightfully so since I paid for this convenience. Who are the National Association of Broadcasters to determine what I listen to with MY money. So I urge you to reject the NAB's petition number 04-160 and let those of us who enjoy our premium (and paid for) music and informational radio stations. Thank you.
